ABSTRACT

JOHN LEONIL I. NILLAMA AND JOHN REY T. ERVITE of Central Philippine State University – Victorias Campus. June 2025. Challenges and Opportunities of Market Vendors in Victorias City

Adviser: Ms. Theresa Jane D. Gutierrez

The local production and marketing of food has reached a critical mass in the past decade. Increasingly, people are searching out food that not only is flavorful, healthy, and safe but that also supports their local community. Farmers are working hard to meet that demand and are taking advantage of the economic opportunities community based, or local food systems provide.

The study aimed to assess challenges and opportunities of market vendors. The respondent of the study is the 71 Market Vendors of Victorias City. Stratified Random Sampling was used in identifying the respondents from the criteria of the respondents.

The study used descriptive-comparative research design. A self-made and validated 25 item questionnaire was utilized in the study. The result of the study showed that there is a significant difference in the extent of challenges and opportunities of market vendors when it is grouped to sex. In line with this, the study proves that the challenges and opportunities among market vendors is significant.
